Chapter 6: The FASD student and behavioural issues

Read time: 5 min

Part of an online guide designed for educators who work with K-8 elementary and middle school level students. This chapter describes common behaviours due to the brain damage that occurred before birth and explains why traditional behaviour modification techniques are not successful with these students. A series of effective strategies are provided within the chapter for poor judgement, impulse control, confusion under pressure, and stubborn or oppositional behaviour.
