Make informed decisions

Analyse information from a variety of sources to identify student needs and coordinate support across the school.

- Take a team approach to enrich understanding of data.
- Design your information collection to include multiple perspectives, types of information and voices.
- Include the learner, their whānau and wider support team as well as the Learning Support Coordinator, if you have one.
- Use ethical means of data collection and seek approval when appropriate.
- Maintain privacy of data and apply privacy policies when using sensitive information.
- Make it easier to understand and share data, using graphs, charts and infographics.
- Split data by groups to inform school resourcing or PLD needs.
- Establish processes and timelines for reporting to groups such as the school board, whānau, students and other stakeholders.
