

Access parent, community and advocacy support services

Local people, groups and support agencies can offer help with people's everyday lives, and advocacy.

- People who could be advocates and allies include whānau, friends, people from local clubs or support workers
- Local parent groups or agencies
- Community groups such as cultural and iwi groups, sporting groups and clubs
- Disability support groups such as IHC, IDEA services and Enable
- Advocacy groups such as Enabling Good Lives New Zealand and Disabled People's Association New Zealand.

You can look for agencies that provide support at:

Support and services – Whaikaha Ministry of Disabled People
Community directory – Citizens Advice Bureau
